Destiny Rising (True Calling Book 5) By Siobhan Davis

"This series deserves to become as well-known as popular series such as The Hunger Games, Divergent, The Maze Runner etc. ... it's that good."
Paranormal Books Blog

Fully completed series. Amazon bestseller. Over 900 5-star ratings for the series on Goodreads.

Every choice has a consequence...

Once again, the world is on the brink of momentous change. As revolutionary organization Saoirse prepares to battle the government for control of Earth and Novo, Ariana and those she loves must join humanity's fight for justice and freedom.

As haunted memories resurface, old discoveries and new realities conspire to shatter her world forever.

Torn in one direction by her unique connection to childhood sweetheart Zane, and pulled in the other by a relentless passion for her fiery fiancé Cal, she must make the hardest decision of all. While embarking on a road to self-discovery, her psychic gift evolves and the full extent of her powerful ability is revealed.

Then fate lands another savage blow and she faces the most horrific choice of all. Forced into striking a deal with the enemy, she must make the ultimate personal sacrifice or risk everything she holds dear.

When destiny finally rears its head, what will the future hold?

WILL I ENJOY THIS SERIES?

True Calling is an enthralling young adult science fiction fantasy romance series that has earned rave reviews from readers who enjoyed popular series like The Hunger Games, Divergent, Matched, The Selection, The 100, 1984, and it's even been favourably compared to the movie Elysium. Set between two vastly different worlds (utopian vs. dystopian) and told from two different perspectives, this series will appeal to readers who enjoy any of the following genres: Teen and Young Adult, Science Fiction (soft), Dystopian, Romance, Fantasy, Paranormal or Supernatural, Urban Fantasy.

This Amazon bestselling series is fully complete, and it comprises the following books:

True Calling - Book 1
Lovestruck - Short Story
Beyond Reach - Book 2
Light of a Thousand Stars - Novella
Destiny Rising - Book 3

Discounted Boxset also available on this site.

PRAISE FOR DESTINY RISING

"It was beyond brilliant - totally unputdownable, wildly entertaining, edge of the seat action, full of suspense; it totally rocked." Goodreads Reviewer

"This is without a doubt the best book the author has written so far. This series shows how a love triangle can be done right. Destiny Rising evoked so many emotions in me..and the ending, wow, so powerful." Lola's Book Reviews

"I cannot believe all of the whammy that this author packed into her book. It's insane how quickly she's put out these three books, and the quality is so incredibly good." Goodreads Reviewer

"The events in this book, especially the ones I thought I could handle, left my heart and mind racing. Siobhan Davis is an exceptional writer." Written Arts

"Suspense, and the urge to turn the page were almost overwhelming, resulting in quite a few long nights. The story is complex, but solidly built. Good to the last page." Patricia Hamill. Pure Textuality

"I cannot put my love for Siobhan Davis' True Calling series into words - it's easily one of my favorite series. Destiny Rising tugs at your heart strings but it's wonderful. The writing is brilliant and flows smoothly. Davis' brings the series to a close with an epilogue that ties everything perfectly together. What a fantastic ride..." RamblingBooks

"True Calling was great, and Beyond Reach was awesome, but Destiny Rising took the series to a whole new level. This series deserves to become as well-known as popular series such as The Hunger Games, Divergent, etc... It's that good." Paranormal Books

EXCERPT FROM CHAPTER 1

Every color imaginable floats in front of my eyes. Temporary whiplash sets in as my head jerks back and forth, surveying the myriad of different fish swimming freely outside the glass window of the observation deck. It's a pretty cool hiding place. Soothing in its own way. Well, as soothing as anything could be considering my current predicament.

Mercifully, I've been left undisturbed for the last hour--undisturbed by other humans that is.

My thoughts, however, are entirely another matter.

Severely disturbed is more akin to how I feel at the swarm of memories that are presently invading my mind. Forced to flee when the government unexpectedly attacked Saoirse's facility in Florida, I can barely recall our arrival here in the underwater military Command Center. It hadn't actually taken that long to travel here even though we are thousands of miles out at sea and scraping the bottom of the ocean floor. That's the beauty of the Velo network, I suppose. Designed specifically as a high-velocity transportation system, it can travel at the speed of light. Okay, so I made that last bit up, but it's probably not far from the truth.

Vaguely remembering Cal going to sort out our accommodation, I had taken flight at the first opportunity. I'd wandered aimlessly for a while until I stumbled into the main lobby area. Levels stretched upward as far as I could see. Curious to discover what was at the top, I'd hopped in the elevator and ended up here.

The observation deck reminds me a little of the Empire State Building or the Rockefeller Center but without all the buildings and the crowds. The view is still spectacular though.

Scooting forward on my knees, I press my nose to the glass and stare at the multi-colored fish as they dance on by. The water outside is eerily calm and there's barely a ripple.

The one observation I've made so far about our new home is how weird it smells. If I were standing at the top of the Empire State Building now, I'd inhale the fresh minty air and feel the sting on my skin as wind whistled by, whipping my hair around my face. There's nothing here but a sterile, clinical-type odor that reminds me of a hospital ward, or the whiff you get when you sit in a brand new car for the first time. I wiggle my nose as my nostrils itch aggravatingly. I hope I'm not allergic.

Approaching footsteps break my reverie, and my heart rate rockets when I sense who it is.

There's no hiding from him.

Not now. Not ever.

"I've been looking for you everywhere."

Glancing up, I automatically sweep him from head to toe. Sculptured jawline, check. Sparkling blue eyes, double check. Defined chest and abs, oh, yeah. Before I can continue my ogling, he drops to his knees beside me. My body still presses into the glass, but he gently tugs on my shoulders, easing me back. Twisting around, he snags me onto his lap.

My gaze remains latched onto his, and I know I need to stop staring. But I can't force myself to look away, almost like it's an inhuman feat I'm incapable of achieving. "I feel like man-candy." Cal smirks.

I snort in a most unattractive manner. "I can easily get behind that," I say, visualizing getting all up in his personal space. Yeah, my mind is still in the gutter, though I'm totally blaming my pregnancy hormones for that.

Threading his fingers in mine, Cal stares at me pensively. "Talk to me. What's going on?" Panic builds in my chest and I avert my eyes.

Mission accomplished on the whole staring thing.

"Nothing much," I mutter, focusing on my feet. I won't lie to his face.

"Is it him? Do you remember?"

Even though he's somewhat hit the nail on the head, there's no way I'm admitting to that right now and not until I've spoken to Zane about the horrific memory that's hijacked my mind and threatened my sanity.

Though I'm unsure if I'll ever get to do that, for we've been separated again, and this time I fear there's no returning from it.

Zane has been in a coma since he took a bullet for me in the woods outside the Clementia compound.

Miraculously, I'd still been able to communicate with him through my mind, but that connection is lost now and I'm terrified for him. Even when we were living on different worlds, we'd found a way to communicate. Now there is nothing but a blank, empty void, and I'm so afraid of what that means.

I'm still mad at him though.

I'd confided in him about the weird dreams I've been having these last couple of weeks. He knew; yet, he said nothing and tried to brush it off. "That sounds very mundane," he'd said. 'Mundane' indeed. I had sensed something was off, but given everything else going on at that time, I'd let it drop.

I know what he would say if he were here now and I could confront him. I was only trying to protect you. By lying to me.

I'm so sick of all the deceptions, well intentioned or not. And I direct that thought at myself too. I'm the worst culprit, and I hate myself for it. Nonetheless, I'm not breathing a word to Cal about the abhorrent memory that has resurfaced, threatening to derail me completely.

I don't think I even like me anymore, so how on earth can I expect him to if he finds out? Though the temptation to share the burden is riding me hard, I can't risk losing Cal again. "I remember some stuff, but it's not what you think. It's just the enormity of everything and where I am. I had such plans for my life, you know? None of this was on my agenda." I shake my head and bite down on my lip. Risking a peek at him, I note his narrowed eyes and taut jawline. Jeez, I'm such an idiot. I can't seem to stop putting my foot in it. "I'm not explaining properly," I say, wrapping my arm across his shoulders. "I want to be with you, but all the other stuff ... it's overwhelming. And it's as if it's just hit me, like an out-of-control juggernaut."

"You know you can tell me anything, right?" He twists a lock of my hair around his finger.

He doesn't believe me.

"Of course. And I would if there was anything to tell. I'm just trying to get my head around everything." I hate lying again because I've promised him that there will be no more secrets between us.

But I can't tell him this.

I can't. I won't.

I don't want to see the look in his eyes when he realizes I'm not the person he thinks I am. I always thought I was a good person, but now? Now, I'm not so sure.

My eyes dart to the glass again. "I wish I was a fish," I blurt out.

Cal almost chokes on his laugh. "What?"

"Look at them," I say, motioning with my hand. "They look content, right?"

"Okaaaay. I'll play along." He arches a brow.

My eyes stare transfixed out the window. "Life must be so simple, just swimming along without a care in the world. And if they succumb to a predator, it would be fast. Two seconds of realization and then poof, over and out. No politics, no suffering, no impending war. No ..." I clamp my mouth shut in time, the word 'baby' lying unspoken on my tongue.

If Cal notices, he doesn't let on. "Hhmm," he says, his finger trailing a path down the side of my face. My skin tingles in every place where he touches me and I shudder. He smiles knowingly. "How do you know fish aren't plagued with worries and concerns? That they don't think and feel the same way we do?" His lips tug up at the corners.

"Oh please! What do they have to worry about? Corrupt governments? Fake rebel movements? A deranged bitch with some kind of personal vendetta?"

He frowns, his finger momentarily stalling on my cheek. "If you were a fish, which one would you be?"

I'm caught off guard by the blatant diversion, but I decide to go with the flow.

Anything to avoid a further convo about my recalled memories.
